OUR STORY

The burrito was born on the farmlands of Mexico circa 19th century, where workers brought their lunches of beans and salsa in corn tortillas.

Over the next 100 years, these immigrants carried the gut-busting food all the way north to a Latin neighbourhood of San Francisco where it emerged as a mainstream favourite. In the bustling metropolis of San Francisco, the burritos nurture fathomless hankerings that transcend mere hunger. They function for the homesick the way spaghetti transports the Italians and chow mein soothes the Chinese.

At El Burrito Co., we pay homage to the 'cylindrical god' and seek to share its glorious flavours and awesomeness to more people around the world.
